proper to call y re-publish, are offered to eir list, viz:

agazine neatrge supply of iso, Cap, Let-c, Cards and be sold on the ngraving will establish a will be for-for the same, the particu-ty executed. at always on ge for new at eavenworth, old Liquors, assortment of nd. *1tf

H. GROVER. VER. ELORS AT Balt Creek

NEWSPAPER DEVOTED TO POLITICS, LITERATURE, AGRICULTURE, MERCANTILE AFFAIRS AND

STRINGFELLOW & KELLEY.

"The Squatter claims the same Sovereignty in the Territories that he possessed in the States,"

EDITORS & PROPRIETORS.

VOL. 1.

ATCHISON, KANSAS TERRITORY, TUESDAY, MARCH 6, 1855.

NO. 4.

The Squatter Sovereign,

IS PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY MORNING BY II. STRINGFELLOW & R. S. KELLEY.

Publication Office, in Squatter Sovereign Building, No. 3. Atchison Street. THAMS :- Two dollars per annum, invariably advance. Single for fifty cents. Single copies 5 cents, twelve cop-

To CLUBS:—Five copies will be sent to one address for $9. Ten to one address for $17.—
Twenty to one address for $32. Forty to one address for $60. To Invariably IN ADVANCE. Money may be sent by mail, at the risk of the Editors. Postmasters are requested to act as our

RATES OF ADVERTISING. For one square, twelve lines or less ... $1 00
Each additional insertion, per square ... 50
One square, three months ... 4 00
... six months ... 7 00
... twelve months ... 10 00 " " " six months.....15 00
" " " " twelve months.20 00
One half of a column, three months.....12 00

six months..... 45 00

Communications of a personal nature, will be inserted as advertisements, and charged for at the rates of $2,00 per square, and payment required in advance. Advertisements not marked on the copy or a specific number of insertions, will be con-inued until ordered out, and payment exacted

All advertisements must be paid for in , or at the expiration of three months. (All letters addressed to the Editors be POST PAID, to receive attention.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express no-1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publisher may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible, till they have settled the bill and ordered them discontinued. 4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held res-5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office, or removing Jones is direct."

and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facia

"I feel too ser

The Poet's Column.

YOUNG MEN OF EVERY CREED.

BY W. H. PRIDEAUX. Young men of every creed! Up and be doing now; The time is come to "run and read," With thoughtful eye and brow. Extend your grasp to catch

Things unattained before, Touch the quick spring of Reason's latch And enter at her door! The seeds of minds are sown

In every human breast; But dormant lie, unless we own The spirit's high behest!

Look onwardly, and LEARN, Look inwardly and THINK; And truth and love shall brighter burn O'er Error's wasting brink.

Give energy to thought,

By musing as you move;

Nor deem unworthy aught,

Or trifling for your love!

Plunge in the crowding mart-There read the looks of men; And Human Nature's wondrous chart Shall open to the ken!

Shun oppression—'tis sin!
The deadliest, fatal ban
Which ever veiled the light within,
And palled the soul of man!

In justice walk sublime,
As God designed you should;
The pillared props of growing time,
Supporting solid good.

Tread far the forest; climb The sloping hill wayside, And feel your spirits ring their chime Of gladness far and wide!

Where'er your footsteps tend, Where'er your feelings flow, Be man and brother to the end-

Cerb Anger, Pride and Hate; Let Love the watchword be; Then will your hearts be truly great, God-purified and free! LITTLE THINGS.

scorn not the slightest word or deed,

Nor deem it void of power; There's fruit in each wind-wafted seed, Waiting its natal bower;
A whispered word may touch the heart,
And call it back to life;
A look of love bid sin depart,
And still unholy strife.

No act falls fruitless; none can tell

How vast its powers may be;
How vast its powers may be;
Nor what results unfolded dwell
Within it silently.
Work and despair not, give thy mite,
Nor care how small it be;
God is with all that serve the right,
The holy, true, and free,

The Area of the parish priests have as a very day our daily bread, instead of asking our bread every week, or every month, or the whole why you little goose, so as to always e it fresh.

"You do then as solemn as the grave. young man affected to smile.

What is the matter?

he said in a low voice—
"You told me that a month ago."

"And is as cold to me as an icicle."

er attractions than this rival can bring." Lee drew his fingers involuntarily over his soomth lip and chin, a movement which will be won," he said. "Do you think I would make a fool of "Fool of yourselt! What do you mean by that? You say you love Arabella Jones. If you wish to win her, you must make shorter way; you must purchase what you havn't time to grow. Hide yourself for a week or two and then make your appearance with enough hair upon your face to conceal one-half or two-thirds of your feain order to secure the love of a woman be-was coldly polite to all the young men who ventured to approach her, but warm and smiling as a June morning to an individual named Glover, who had been abroad, with-hold from you the honest expression with-hold from you the honest expression with-hold from you the honest expression with-hold from you the honest expression

Not very long after this, a young stran-ger made his appearance in fashionable "Is what?" ask

Count, travelling though the country, who purposely concealed his title. The object of his visit, it was also said, was the selection of a wife from among the lovely and unsophisticated daughters of America.— He wished to find some one who had never breathed the artificial air of the higher circles in his own country; who would love him for himself alone, and become his loving companion through life. How all these important facts in relation o him got wind few paused to inquire .-Young ladies forgot their plain-faced, untitled, vulgar lovers, and put on their best looks and most winning graces for the Count. For a time he carried all before him. Daily might he be seen in the Chesnut street, gallanting some favored belle, with the elegant air of dancing master, and the grimace of a monkey. Staid citizens stop-ped to look at him, and plan old ladies were half in doubt whether he were a man

At last the Count's more particular at-Jones, and from that time the favored Glover found that his star had passed its zenith. It was in vain that he curled his moustache more fiercely, and hid his chin in a goatee fully as large as the Count's; all was of no avail. The ladies generally and Miss Arabella in particular, looked with his daughter. This intelligence upon our silly young ladies, whose heads are turned with a foreign accent and a home, intending to Comfort Arabella with hairy lip. You acted the whiskered fop to a charm. No one could have dreamed you'll promise, certain true, that you won't coldly upon him.

conduct of Arabella had disgusted him, and he therefore looked calmly on and marked the progress of events. At length the count, from paying marked attention to Arabella in company, began come back.* to visit her occasionally at her father's It was arr house, little to the satisfaction of Mr. Jones the father, who had never worn a whisker in his life, and had a most bitter aversion to moustaches. This being the case, the course of Arabella's love did not, it may be French Count, travelling in disguise."

"A French monkey! What on earth it a matter of jesting," said Lee, not by any means relishing the levity of his friend.

"But, my dear sir," urged the friend, "But, my dear sir," urged the friend, "But, my dear sir," urged the friend, "But his rank but his r of it; and perhaps, good: for a year subsective whole matter go. Depend upon it there is no other chance for you with the lady."

Already was the hand of Mr. Jones at density in the most unequive-good: for a year subsective whole matter go. Depend upon it there is no other chance for you with the lady."

Already was the hand of Mr. Jones at density in the most unequive-good: for a year subsective designing villan to that of a senseless fop, lady. Alter spending some time density in the rough grasp of the guise, not relishing the rough grasp of the designing villan to that of a senseless fop, lady."

Already was the hand of Mr. Jones at density in the same manner of it; and perhaps, good: for a year subsective quently. Abel Lee conducted his old flame there, in talking with the farmer, one every well, and thought that he should be said to his wife, "I have not been able to "Then she must go. I would not make mon sense, can you not see plain as daylight that he is no nearer akin to a foreign omes unworthy of her love."

Arabella was silenced, because it was passed between the disappointed Countess, that was to be, and her excited father, is timent of a right mind, and proves to me that Arabella Jones is unworthy of you.—
Let her go to the whiskers, and do you try to find some one who has soul enough the clear seeing man; but she was not in the least convinced Mr. De Courci was not a least convinced Mr. De Courci was not a least convinced Mr. De Courci was not a Jones called at the hotel where De Courci

"Is what?" asked the nobleman, slight- heart."

"He will not consent, then?"

for some moments. "Will not consent. What then? Arabella!" and he armed in his manner-"Arabella, shall an unfounded prejudice interpose with its icy goatee.
barriers? Shall the hearts that are ready "Who to melt into one, be kept apart by the mere word of a man? Forbid it leve! But suppose I go to him?"
"It will be useless. He is as unbenluctance as seemed to be called for. A few weeks susequently, Mr. Jones received a letter from some person un-As for Abel Lee, the bitteress of his out an hour before. Pacing the floor in began to fall. Darkness closed over all things, but still she was away, and it soon girls. The effect upon her may be more

> It was arranged between De Courci with a carriage at a retired place in the suburbs, where she was to join him. They were then to drive to a minister's, get the marriage ceremony performed, and proceed families in France, and to have immense estates near Paris."

"The largest estates he possess are in Whiskerando, if you ever heard of that place. A French Count! Property."

A namp showed her the carriage in waiting and a man pacing slowly the pavement "Ha! ha! No doubt of it. But come, don't begin to look longed-faced. We will keep our own counesel, and no one need be the wiser for our participation in place.

and returned home rich in hairy honors, if in nothing else. The manners of this Glover distinguished him as much as his appearance.

with-hold from you the honest expression people will remember a whiskered, moustachoed fellow with a forreign accent, named De Courci who has been turning the heads of half the silly young girls in

"I am sorry to say that he has unfounded prejudices against every thing not vulgarly American,"

Has lady love, was seated in his room some determined this time to "do or die." But, the minutes after the sudden appearance of Mr. Jones at the place of meeting became small by degrees, and beautifully less, "I fear not, Mr. De Courci." thrown open, and in bounded De Courci, fairly in her presence, he was barely able 'Hnm-um. Ah!" and the Countthought hair and all! Cloak, hat and hair were to remark that it was a warm evening. instantly thrown aside, and a smoothe, young, langhing face revealed itself from behind wiskers, moustaches, and can father of hers got me by the throat before I could say Jack Robinson, and I was glad to make off with a whole skin.

Arabella arrived at the moment and gave a glorious scream. Of anything further, deponent sayeth not.
"She'll be cured of moustaches or I'm that all was counterfeit." disappointment was already passed. The a state of strong excitement, he awaited conduct of Arabella had disgusted him, and her return until the shadows of evening wrong to victimize Miss Arabella for the "It isn't much, after all," said Sally, castbenefit of the whole race of weak-minded > became evident that she did not mean to serious than we apprehend," "No I think not. The woman could pass by as true a man as Abel Lee, and Arabella that he was to wait for her for a foreign Count in disguise, hasn't > > do her good." "If it turn out to be no worse than that, whimsically coupled. "Always a great variety of the finest articles, jugs and jewsharps, mutton-hams and mustard, codfish and coffee, candy and cream pitchers, want to move."

"Why I don't want to sell it, Mr. B.; nor would I, unless I can get twice what it is would I, unless I can get twice what it is worth as I am satisfied here; and don't want to move." mackerel and matches, shad and shavingboxes, cheese and chocolate, brooms and beer, teas and tenpenny's, hard soap and soft soap, bed cords and baskets, pipes and sell it for less than 3,000." pigtail, cigars and cider, brandy and beeswax, gin and gingerbread, whiskey and whip stocks, starch, steamers and stoughtons, &c.

A Gentleman travelling in Eu rope, last summer, copied the following lines from a tombstone in a grave-yard, in Llangollen, North Wales:
"Our life is but a winter day—
Some only breakfast and away;

Who goes the soonest has the least to pay.'

A Jerseyman was very sick, and was not expected to recover. His friends got around his bed, and one of them says: "John do you feel willing to die?" John made an effort to give his views o the subject, and answered with his feeble Sally at length, got tired of this oft-reitera-ted observation, and resolved to help him would marry her. did not succeed any better. Sally coming to be married. being the only idea that occured to him, except one, and that he didn't dare give utterance to.

Mary Somers, an intimate friend, was gome, considering she's a year younger. Jedediah's heart leaped up in his throat, ter all; though to be sure there was some- to him with a loud voice, ordered him to degree.

"But I'm afraid you'll tell after all."

-that you and I were going to be married the day before Mary Somers.

Jedediah started, as if struck by a gal- tiff; then springing from his chair, he vanic battery, and shouted enthusiastically caught him by his legs, and cut him into a -"So we will, gosh, if you'll only say

Ladies that have bashful lovers, take heed!

of by Miss Jones."

"Jest away, Marston, if it is so pleasant to you,' remarked Lee, with a slightly offended air.

"No, but my dear fellow, I am in earnest. I really wish to serve you. Still, nest. I really wish to serve you. Still, nest. I really wish to serve you. Still, and he was imposter enough to her an angry of his wild prank was over, a great deal manners betrayed what he attempted to conceal."

In an of his wild prank was over, a great deal manners betrayed what he attempted to conceal."

In an of his wild prank was over, a great deal manners betrayed what he attempted to conceal."

"Arebellas!" said Mr. Jones with a good deal of sternness, "if you were silly enough to him to this fellow what you say you. Still, and he was imposter enough not to have matter. Then he said, if you had not done expected to feel. Reason and reflection the water privilege carefully, and to make manners betrayed what he attempted to conceal."

"Arebellas!" said Mr. Jones with a good deal of sternness, "if you were silly enough to him to this fellow what you say you. Still, and he was imposter enough not to have matter. No great harm, however, come matter. No great harm, however, come and she was near enough to her an angry of his wild prank was over, a great deal manners betrayed what he attempted to conceal."

"Arebellas!" said Mr. Jones with a good deal of sternness, "if you were silly enough to him to this fellow what you say you. Still, and he was imposter enough not to have manner to be a significant to make manner and she was near enough to her an angry of his wild prank was over, a great deal manner betrayed what he attempted to manner search than he had no right to trifle with the went with his dog, gun, and fishing. It was the voice of her father! Fear-house, a Mr. F.; and spent his time the water privilege carefully, and to make manner was the water. Then he said, if you had not done in the water privilege carefully. The water has deal of stard the water privilege carefully. The water has deal of the water privile

"Well what do you say the farm is "That is too much, I can't give that." "Very well, you need not."

Here the conversation ended. Mr. B., that I should like to live here very well, and though you ask so much, I will take up with your offer, and give you $3,000."

"Why, as to that, Mr. B., you did not take my farm when I offered it to you, and I am not willing to sell it now for anything less than $6,000.

"You are joking, Mr. F."

"Not so, Mr. B., I am in earnest, and shan't continue my offer more than 24 off for instructions, and the next day told Mr., F. he would give $6,000. The purchase was made, deeds passed, and money paid. Some time afterwards Mr. B. asked the farmer what reason he had, in the course of a few days, to double the price for his farm, and to insist upon it.

"Why, Mr. B., I will tell you; a day or two after I offered you the farm for $3,000, Massachosetts is "like the curl in a pig's I saw two men on the opposite side of the Merrimack river, sitting on a rock, and what it meant, but I thought something was in the wind, and I was determined, if you fairly in her presence, he was barely able In the same place there was another Moor, very rich, and he had an only menced her attack by informing him that if his son could find a partner that suited him. Upon which the young man named his neighbor's daughter. On hearing this, "You don't say so," said Jedediah, that the father was much surprised; but the son persisted in desiring his father to speak to the Moor, who was his intimate friend, and ask him for his daughter. The Moor said, when he was applied to, he had no objec-tion, but whoseever had his daughter, would be better dead than alive. The wedding day, however, was fixed and the bride was led away to her husband's house; and according to the Moorupon our silly young ladies, whose heads are turned with a foreign accent and a hairy lip. You acted the whiskered fop to a charm. No one could have drawed with a foreign accent and a will establish the bride and bridegroom together till the bride and bridegroom together till the next day, not without great fear and suspicion that they should find the bridegroom in the morning dead, or not far from it. thing about you in it."

"Do tell me," pleaded Jedediah, his which the dog not doing, he got up in a rage, and drew his sword; this the dog seeing, run away, and he after him, till he had caught him, and cut off his head and on his not complying, he first threatened he would serve him as he served his mashundred pieces. He then returned a second time to the table, making horrid faces

The bride, who was an eye witness of they dared to come to the door without speaking; make no noise or you are all dead men. This astonished them all more, continued his sporting; and having received and when they knew how the night had his instructions in the course of a few days, been passed, they thought very highly of renewed his talk with Mr. F., and said to the young man for his great skill in gov-"Well Mr. F., I have made up my mind hold; and from that day forward, she is so

CAUTIONARY HINT.

Lord chancellor Brougham lately complained of a noise in his Court, and told the door keeper that "it seemed no use to speak to him; but if the noise continued, he should speak to his successor."

The heart of a young girl is like a nest where the little swallow chirps, shows its head, tries its wings, and watches the Miscellaneous.

MARRYING A COUNT.

BY KATE SUTHERLAND.

"Yes. Somebody dies every sec-"So they say. But I don't mean that. What are you looking so solemn about?

"Then I must be a grave subject," The "You smile like death's head, Abel.-

"She is here to night." "So I See."

all before them. The man is nothing now; Announcing Candidates for office, in advance, $3. If inserted on a credit, candidates will be charged eight dollars.

myself?"

crop than Glover. The whole matter is very simple, and comprised in a nut-shell. The only difficulty in the way is the loss of time consequent upon the raising of this hairy crop.

It is plain, in fact, that you must take a a fool of myself for the Queen of Sheba. A man who sacrifices his own self-respect comes unworthy of her love."

his credit, was rejoiced to find that he had.
Still the idea having once entered his head, he could not drive it away. He had a most unconquerable desire to see some one start an opposition to Glover and was half tempted to do it himself, for the mere fun of the thing. But this was rather more trouble than he wished to take.

"I am the happiest of men!" said the Count, enthusiastically.

"And I the happiest of woman," responsions tunconquerable desire to see some one ponded Arabelly, audibly, and in spirit.

"Your father?" said De Courci. "Shall see him?"

"Your father?" said De Courci. "Shall see him?"

"Your father?" said De Courci. "Shall see him?"

"It will not be well yet," replied the maiden, evincing a good deal of confusion. In the subject, and answered with his feeble voice:

"I—think—I'd rather stay—where I'm better acquainted."

"When a man has a great deal of fault to find with a newspaper which he never fails read, it is a sure sign that he has not paid for it. People seldom find fault with own property."

"Is any body dead?"

"I am not aware that I look so very solemn."

Abel Lee took his interrogator by the arm, and drew him aside. When they were a little apart from the gay company,

"For a very plain reason." "Yes too plain."
"Whiskers and moustaches are driving his friend observed and comprehended. "Before the hair can grow, Arabella yourself attractive, you have only to cultivate whiskers, mustaches and an imperial, and present a more luxuriant tures, and your way to the heart of Miss "I feel too serious on the subject to make "I propose is your only chance. Glover will have it all his own way, if you do not take some means to head him off. The the ladies. He had besides large whiskers, large moustache, and larger imperials than Glover, a superb goatee, and a decided foreign accent. He soon threw the American in the shade especially as a whisper got out that he was a French purposely concealed his title. The object of the shade is covered with hair can be a superb goatee, and a decountry, who purposely concealed his title. The object of the shade is covered with hair can be a superb goatee, and a decountry, who purposely concealed his title. The object of the shade is covered with hair can be a superb goatee, and a decountry who purposely concealed his title. The object of the shade is covered with hair can be a superb goatee, and a decountry who asked me again to sell my farm I would the beauteous Sally, Hammond, but owing the beauteo ding as iron,"

Such being the case, the Count proposed an elopement; to which Arabella agreed after the expression of asmuch re-her up in her room. But she had gone

In the name of homely, American com-mon sense, can you not see plain as day-the unbroken fury of his ire. Without light that he is no nearer akin to a foreign much ceremony he thrust her into the waitnobleman than his barber or boot-black ing carriage, and giving the driver a few may be?"

May be?"

May be driver a few hurried directions, entered himself.

try to find some one who has soul enough to love the man."

The young men separated, to mingle with the company. Marston could not help noticing Miss Arabella Jones more particularly than before, and perceived she when they next, met, speaking in that delivered to those of which any of her fair compeers could boast,

"My dear Miss Jones," said the Count, when they next, met, speaking in that delivered to the hotel where De Cource put up, early on the next morning. But the elegant foreigner had not occupied his appartments during the night. He called a few hours later, but he had not yet made his appearance; in the morning, but Delivered to those of which any of her fair compeers could boast,

"My dear Miss Jones," said the Count, a few hours later, but he had not yet made his appearance; in the morning, but Delivered to those of which any of her fair compeers could boast, a few hours later, but he had not yet made his appearance; in the morning, but Delivered to those of which any of her fair compeers could boast, a few hours later, but he hotel where De Cource put up, early on the next morning. But the elegant foreigner had not occupied his appartments during the night. He called he hotel where De Cource put up, early on the next morning. But the elegant foreigner had not occupied his appartments during the night. He called he hotel where De Cource put up, early on the next morning. But up, early on the next morning.

appearance.

"To think that a woman could be attracted by a thing like that!" he said to himself, a little pettishly, as he saw the alacrity with which Arabella seized the offered arm of Glover to accompany him to the supper table.

Marston was a fellow of a good deal of humor and relished practical joking rather more than was consistent with the comfort of other people. We cannot commend him for this trait of character. But it was one of his faults, and all men have their mysterial supports the supper table.

"The Count hesitated, and looked interesting. Arabella blushed and trembled.—
The words, "You will speak to my father," were on the lady's tongue. But she checked herself, and remained silent. It would not do to make that reference of the subject.

Then came a gentle pressure of hair upon her cheek, and a gentle pressure from the gloved hand in which her own was resting.

"My dear young lady am I under the subject of a good, substantial citizent was one of his faults, and all men have their the foundation of the subject."

The count hesitated, and looked interesting. Arabella blushed and trembled.—
The words, "You will speak to my father," were on the lady's tongue. But she checked hered to look for a wife. This was of course believed, for there are people willing to credit the most improbable stories in the world. Very soon a love affair came on, and he was about running off with the silly young gurls in town for the last two months.—He permitted it to leak out; we believe, that he was a French Count, with immense estates near Paris, who had come to this country in order to look for a wife. This was of course believed, for there are people willing to credit the most improbable stories in the world. Very soon a love affair came on, and he was about running off with the silly young gurls in town for the last two months.—Permit ted it to leak out; we believe, that he was a fellow of a good deal of herself, and remained of the heads of half the silly young furls. from the gloved hand in which her own was resting.

It would have given him great pleasure, could he have induced Abel Lee to set up a rivalry in the moustaches and whisker line; but Able had too much good sense for that, and Marston, be it said to his credit, was rejoiced to find that he had. Still the idea having once entered his head, he could not drive it away. He had a disguise is no doubt a scheming villian at tween the two lovers, when his door was

"Where's the Countess?" asked Marston, in a merry voice. "Did she faint?"
"Dear knows! That sturdy old Ameri-

no prophet." "I guess she will. But the fact is, Mar-

"So far as the general effect is concerned heart enough to receive a deep injury.— She will be terribly mortified, but that will course of Arabella's love did not, it may be supposed, run very smooth. for her father told her very decidedly that he was not going to have "that monkey-faced fellow" coming about his house. Shocked at such vulgar language, Arabella replied—

"Gracious me, father! Don't speak in that way of Mr. De Courci. He's a French Count, travelling in disguise."

"If it turn out to be no worse than that, I shall be glad. But, I must own, now that the whole thing is over, that I am not as well satisfied with myself as I thought I would be. I don't know what my good sister at the South would say, if they knew I had been engaged in such a mad-cap affair. But I lay all the blame upon you. You with your cool head, ought to have the company of a young friend known better than to start a young hot-take some means to head him off. The matter is plain enough. In the days of chivalry a knight would do almost any unreasonable thing—enter upon almost any mad adventure—to secure the favor of his lady love; and will you hesitate when nothing of false whiskers and moustaches is concerned? You don't deserve to be thought of by Miss Jones."

"I know it to be true," said Arabella, in for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a man advance off. Her heart beat will up from her boson stopped suddedly in alarm, for he saw a relative of the proson of the suddedly in alarm, for he saw a relative of the proson of the suddedly in alarm, for he saw a relative of the proson of the suddedly in alarm, for he saw a relative of the proson of the suddedly in alarm, for he saw a relative of the proson of the suddedly in alarm, for he saw a relative of the proson of the suddedly in alarm, for he saw a relative of the proson of the suddedly in a and faithful wife.

Pleased to come said he should be pleased to have him.

"Well, Mr. F., what will you take for "Well, Mr. F., what will you take for your farm?

"Why I don't want to sell it, Mr. B.; nor "Why I don't want to sell it, Mr. B.; nor and as no one answered, they concluded or that the bridegroom was either killed or the Others to dinner stay, and are well fed: The oldest man but sups and goes to bed. Large is his debt who lingers out the day: A few years ago a couple went to a country Church to be married. When, in the course of the marriage service, the Minister asked the bridegroom, in the usual form, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" he coolly answered, 'To be sure I will; I'm come o'purpose."

POPPING THE QUESTION. and made his way to her father's house, determined this time to "do or die." But, unluckily, his courage oozed away, and became small by degrees, and beautifully less, (as the politicians say,) still, when he was faith in her was a summary of the will, but not the power to execute them.

out of his predicament, for, like a true woman, she had not failed to perceive what Jedediah was trying to come at, but couldn't. the poor and wretched life that I lead, I For the fourth time, Jedediah came, but wish to marry." The father said he should be delighted

"Yes," said Sally, "she's going to be married next week. It seems rather queer that she should be married before but he didn't venture to say anything.

never telll anybody."
"No, I won't, say Jedediah, stoutly proud of the confidence reposed in him.

"It isn't much, after all," said Sally, casting down her eyes, "only a dream, and I don't know whether I ought to tell you af-

"No, I won't certain, true. I hope I legs, and body in peices, and dashed the may be horse-whipped if I do."

"Then—don't look at me, Jedediah, or then came and seated himself by the table. I can't tell it-I dreamed that-that-that He looked round again, and saw a Maltese you and I-I never shall be able to tell you beagle, and gave him the same order; but

"A French monkey! What on earth put that nonsense into your head?"

"Every body knows it, father. Mr De Courci tried to conceal his rank but his but his but his but his veil Arabella went forth alone, and confidence or with such tremoning to with your cool head, ought to have the word."

Known better than to start a young hot-brained fellow like me, just let loose from college, upon such a wild adventure. I'm sudden application of her dream, and could around him. The bride, and once got me fairly not believe he was in earnest. At length Of course Sally was astonished at this and furious gestures, and stared wildly

> He then swore he would serve every living creature in the same manner, not excepting his horse, which was the only come to the door without her husband, they were confirmed in their suspicions.

As soon as she saw them, she began to call them traitors, and asked them how favorite moment to fly.

Merrimack river, sitting on a rock, and talking for some time; then they got up, and went down the river, and after some time returned, and seemed in earnest conversation for half an hour or more, when they arose and went away. I did not know would not do that in the street."